Partnerships for Parks It's My Park Awards Reception Staten Island Volunteers to be Honored

Friends of Eibs Pond Park and Friends of Olmsted-Beil House will be Awarded for Outstanding Service, Activism, and Collaboration

Awards To Be Held Next Thursday, February 27

February 21, 2020 -- NEW YORK, NY -- Partnerships for Parks (PfP), a joint program of NYC Parks and City Parks Foundation, is pleased to announce a special 25th anniversary It's My Park Awards reception, recognizing New York City park volunteers who have demonstrated exceptional leadership and commitment to their local parks through service, advocacy, and collaboration. In 1995, Partnerships for Parks was founded to support community groups that had sprung up in the wake of the fiscal crisis to reclaim their parks. Today, PfP supports nearly 600 groups working to sustain 400 parks and green spaces across New York City, engaging over 25,000 volunteers annually. The awards reception will, for the first time, recognize both newer groups that are making an impact with Bright Future Awards as well as groups that have been involved in their local green spaces over the past 25 years with Legacy Awards. It's My Park is Partnerships for Parks' signature program to engage volunteers in hands-on service projects throughout New York City neighborhood parks. The reception will be held next Thursday, February 27, at the Prince George Ballroom, Manhattan.

This year's honorees are ten outstanding community groups from across the city, five selected from over 400 that participated in the 2019 It's My Park program and five selected from PfP's quarter-century of work in New York. This year alone, the groups participating in It's My Park amounted to more than 26,500 New Yorkers who organized and participated in over 1,280 park service projects in nearly 330 parks across the city. Over the last 25 years, the volunteers working with PfP have been essential to improving and sustaining New York City's 30,000 acres of green space, building long-term investment in these public spaces and strengthening the social fabric of their neighborhoods.

The ceremony will include remarks from Sabina Saragoussi, director of Partnerships for Parks; Heather Lubov, executive director of City Parks Foundation; and NYC Parks Commissioner Mitchell J. Silver, FAICP. All leaders will be on hand to honor and celebrate these inspiring volunteers for their outstanding service.

The Legacy Award recognizes Partnerships for Parks' long-standing partners, who have embodied PfP's mission by working with local residents and decision-makers to transform their parks and green spaces into thriving centers of community life. It will be presented to a community group from each borough that has led It's My Park and other programs, and has shown a long-term commitment to their community and local green space. The Legacy Award for Staten Island goes to Friends of Eibs Pond Park, led by Patricia Lockhart, Debra Klingele, and Carolyn Reid.

Friends of Eibs Pond Park was officially founded in 2001 by Patricia Lockhart, but their community advocacy dates back to the 1980s. When the group was formed, Eibs Pond Park was an illegal dumping ground with cars and tires littering the park and ponds. Friends of Eibs Pond Park worked to remove the debris and invasive species from the park and restore the wood chip path, slowly turning the park into a thriving habitat for plants and animals. The group also worked to engage a local school, PS 57, by using the park and pond for both science classes and stewardship efforts to ensure youth involvement for the years to come.

The Bright Future Award recognizes newly-formed community groups who led their first It's My Park project in October 2018 or later and have achieved crucial developmental milestones. It will be presented to a group from each borough whose swift and successful growth acts as an inspiration to others. The Bright Future Award for Staten Island goes to Friends of Olmsted-Beil House, led by Eileen Monreale, Carlotta Beil DeFillo, Tina Kaasmann Dunn, Felicity Beil, Carol Obler, and Ray Matarazzo.

Friends of Olmsted-Beil House was incorporated in November 2018 to protect, preserve, and present this historic site. The group is now run by a board including the founding directors. Prior to the group's formation, the property was overgrown with vegetation and invasive plants. The group hosted five It's My Park projects in 2019, helping to clear the property. Currently, NYC Parks and the NYC Landmarks Conservancy have begun protecting Olmsted-Beil House from moisture and water penetration. The Friends of Olmsted-Beil House have also hosted a roadshow lecture series throughout Staten Island, including eight events in 2019, to inform and educate the public about the property and its historical importance.

*It's My Park award winners were self or peer nominated and vetted by a Partnerships for Parks selection committee that focused on nominees' achievements in the past year, or over PfP's quarter-century of work. Special regard was given to nominees who overcame a challenge in their park or within their community group, coordinated an It's My Park project, and/or acted as an inspirational role model for NYC community park volunteers.*
